PAT'S PRODUCTION NOTES

Just got back from ConFurence V. Between dodging California earthquakes, talking to loads of artists and fans, AP managed to score some sizzling hot titles! While I can't reveal all the specifics, look for Steve Gallacci's Birthright tentatively scheduled for this summer. I'll keep ya posted as more details become available!

Strangers in Paradise fans might be interested to know that another comic company has tried to pick up Terry Moore's critically acclaimed series after issue number three. Terry's leaning toward self-publishing. While we're all saddened to lose the series, we know what an opportunity this represents for him. Good luck Terry, we wish you the best!

On the manga front, you will definitely want to pay attention to Sentai #1, which is being released this month. It covers Japanese live-action teams and (my personal favorite) Hong Kong films. You might have seen some of these action shows before. Those who have usually agree that HK films are going to be one of the hottest things happening–so don't miss out!

You might have seen the ads for it already, but to toot our horn again, look for The Golden Warrior: Iczer One this April! After some negotiation, we secured the rights to bring the translated version of the manga to the United States! We put together a small ashcan preview recently and let me tell you, the art is absolutely incredible! This April is shaping up to be the Anime Event of the Year, so stick around for all the fun!

WORDS FROM A HIGH-ER PLANE

How do you get your Antarctic Press comics? Do you buy them at your local comics store? Do you order them directly from Antarctic Press, or do you have a subscription? Do you borrow them from your friends, or buy them at conventions?

Many people have written or called us, telling us how hard it is to "find" our comics in their area. Sometimes, they say, their local store only orders one or two copies, and sells out before they can get to them. Sometimes, store managers complain that there is not enough interest, and avoid ordering Antarctic Press titles altogether. Occasionally, store managers claim that they cannot get our books from their distributor, or That Very Book You Are Scouring The Planet For is cancelled.

Don't worry, our books are coming out (mostly on time, but sometime late, I admit), and they are reaching the shelves. But, as with all small comic companies out there, sometimes our comics have a hard time reaching everyone who wants a copy.

There are some actions you can do, however, to make sure that you get all the Antarctic Press books that you like.

READERS: First of all, talk to your store owner or manager; let him or her know exactly what you are looking for. If the store's employees aren't aware of what you want to buy, they are not going to order it. Check to see if your store has an advance-order system, or a subscription service. Ask if the store has copies of their monthly distributor catalog that you can look through. Frequently, stores give discounts on comics ordered in advance. We greatly prefer that you buy our books at your local comics store, but if that is not an option, everything that we publish can be ordered directly through Antarctic Press - check out the back issue listing that is printed with most of the comics we publish (usually on the inside back cover).

RETAILERS: If you are a store manager, and you have difficulty ordering Antarctic Press comics from your distributor, let us know. We can help you track down the problem and make sure that you get the books that you are ordering. Also, keep in mind that we happily fill all retail-store reorders, and we are willing to sell directly to comics stores (anything we have in stock, no minimum, at a hefty discount), if that's what it takes.

Hey! Is there a comics store in your area that you would like to recommend to other Antarctic Press fans? By all means, let us know! Send in the store's name, location, and a few lines on why you think that particular store is so great. If you know several wonderful stores, send them all in. (Store managers - yes, you can nominate your own store, too). We'll compile a list of stores and list them here in a couple of months.

CORRECTIONS

• Goku #2 was accidentally printed on newsprint instead of our regular high-quality book paper. Oops.

• Furrlough #13 was indeed an unlucky issue. The table of contents incorrectly read, "Issue #11" - never fear, you bought the right issue.

PROJECT A-ko

Synopsis

Project: A-ko*–Super-strong A-ko and super-cute C-ko are best friends who have just transferred to Graviton High School. There they encounter super-rich and super-beautiful B-ko, who decides she wants C-ko as her best friend. She tries staging a false attack on C-ko from which she can rescue her, but the action starts too soon and by the time B-ko gets there, A-ko has trashed her flunkies and left with C-ko. Meanwhile, a spy named D has been keeping watch over A-ko and C-ko and reporting at intervals to the captain of a huge and distant spaceship that their princess may have been found. As A-ko and B-ko's battles for C-ko escalate, the gigantic spaceship arrives on Earth, destroying all planetary defenses on the way. Suddenly, A-ko and B-ko find they must join forces for a rescue mission when the alien ship's machines kidnap C-ko!

Project: A-ko 2: Plot of the Daitokuji Financial Group*–Most of the Graviton HS girls want to enjoy summer vacation, but B-ko is still determined to spoil A-ko's fun and nab C-ko.

Following B-ko's failed attempt to challenge A-ko in a swimming contest, A-ko and C-ko are invited by D to dinner in the spaceship, now converted into an amusement park. B-ko goes home and starts designing another A-ko-bashing robot, but her father comes in and convinces her it's too expensive–then takes the plans for himself. Meanwhile, A-ko and C-ko discover that the Captain and D invited them to dinner only so they could plead for help in getting to their home world. A-ko tries her best but fails, so C-ko goes to B-ko for assistance. While B-ko repairs the spaceship, though, her father is busy strongarming the Terran Defense Force to use his new weapon (B-ko's robot) to attack the spaceship and seize its technological bounty!

Project: A-ko 3: Cinderella Rhapsody – Spring fever has hit. A-ko is busy window-shopping with C-ko and daydreaming about her perfect man when she spots a gorgeous and extremely expensive dress in one of the stores. The clerk invites her to try it on, but C-ko gets cranky from lack of attention and takes off, only to be almost run over by a motorcyclist named Kei (or K). Kei gets one look at C-ko and just has time to fall in love at first sight before A-ko bowls him over from behind. Both A-ko and B-ko later fall in love at first sight themselves with Kei while A-ko is working part time at a fast-food restaurant to earn money for the dress. Before they can argue much, though, A-ko misinterprets a drop of a helmet as an offer of a ride from Kei and takes off with him. She spends longer than planned on her "date", though, and C-ko is quite nasty towards Kei when A-ko finally comes to get her. However, when C-ko gets an envelope from Kei the next day, she dutifully delivers it to A-ko, who is stunned to see it is an invitation to a fancy dress party at the spaceship (now a hotel/restaurant). She works hard for the next few days to lose a little more weight and earn the last of the money she needs for that perfect party dress, but when she finally goes to make the actual purchase, the dress is gone!

Project: A-ko 4: Final– Archeologists at a dig discover a strange hexagram symbol on a wall that sends their guide fleeing. Meanwhile, a huge fleet of ships, the same hexagram adorning their flagship, is en route to Earth. Back in Gravlton City, Mr. Daltokuji offers to act as a go-between and introduce Miss Ayumi, the girls' homeroom teacher, to various marriage prospects. While A-ko and B-ko argue yet again in Miss Ayumi's absence, C-ko leaves the room herself to cry when she can't get anyone's attention. Once in the ladies' room, though, she accidentally finds Miss Ayumi reciting a strange chant while holding a pendant inscribed with the aforementioned hexagram, but Miss Ayumi quickly scares her into secrecy with an extremely vicious stare. That night, B-ko is quite angry when she finds out just who her dad has arranged to meet with her teacher. A-ko is no happier the next day when she finds out the prospective husband is none other than Kei! She barges in, angry and hurt, but has precious little time to complain before B-ko and her gang of four burst in dressed in full Green Beret get-up. Miss Ayumi berates them both, then announces she's decided to marry Kei-tomorrow!

A-ko: The Versus-Grey Side—The Kotobuki Conglomerate is celebrating the 10th birthday of its president's daughter, C-ko, on board one of a fleet of their spaceships.

when the birthday girl is kidnapped by a couple of pirates named Chichi Liza and Gracia. They attempt to land on a nearby planet and deliver the captive to their boss, but their ship breaks up on re-entry and C-ko plummets groundward. Luckily, she is saved by A-ko and B-ko, two professional monster hunters working on the planet. B-ko recognizes her and apprises A-ko of just how rich the two of them could be if they return C-ko to her father.

but before any of this can be put into action, Liza and Grush show up and recapture C-ko. A-ko and B-ko manage to catch up to the pirates and almost stop them, but their employer, the mysterious Gail, shows up and kills B-ko. As A-ko mourns, a little ball of light floats down and resolves itself into a tiny member of the Space Patrol called Maruten.
He says his organization is out to stop Gail before he can resurrect in C-ko's body the spirit of Xena, the evil leader who summoned up the great three-headed dragon that destroyed Maruten's home galaxy.
Maruten says he will resurrect B-ko
if she and A-ko help him fight Gail,

and A-ko's only choice is to agree.

A-ko: The Versus–Blue Side– A-ko, B-ko, and Maruten arrive at and infiltrate Gail's fortress despite A-ko's earlier misgivings. They get split up, and while A-ko battles Liza, B-ko finds herself face to face with Gail. Too attracted to him to kill him, though, she joins him instead. When A-ko and Liza wreck the base's power plant during their scuffle, Gail takes off in an escape ship with B-ko and C-ko, leaving A-ko, Maruten, and his two former hired guns behind. As Gail's ship heads out, the Kotobuki fleet does its best to stop him, but Xena, now in control of C-ko's body, summons the dragon and demolishes them. Later, Maruten and A-ko are once again in pursuit of the dragon, warping in to its current location only to catching it in the midst of more stellar destruction. They board Gail's ship and A-ko actually manages to almost stop Gail, but he gets the drop on her. Before he can kill her, though, B-ko steps in and, after a moment's hesitation, shoots him. She has little time to mour him, though, as C-ko/Xena is still directing the dragon on a course of universal destruction!
